

your sphere and put you into it, and that it will be the best place for you in the universe.

BROTHER L. Reference to the context will show us that the work we are to do is to help reconcile the world to God. We are working with him in new-creating this world. [Reads 2 Cor. v. 17-21.] We, then, as workers together with him, must love as Christ loved and work as he worked. We work together with him in the sense that we are identified with him in motive and aim as we expect to be identified with him in the eternal reward. I am pained at the thought that I have, as it seems to me, been scarcely half awake to my duty and privilege as a worker together with Christ. I ask you to pray for me that I may do all my duty and enjoy the fullness of the glorious privilege here offered.

THE LEADER. We will join you in that prayer in your own behalf and our own. I do covet for you, my brother, the doing of the best work that is possible to you; and this is God's will concerning you.

BROTHER R. It is important that we have a definite work for the Lord, and that we be sure it is indeed Christian work. Every Christian will do well to have some specific work into which he will put his most fervent prayers, his best thoughts, his warmest zeal, his most generous enthusiasm. Thus he may become rich toward God, and lay up treasure in heaven.

MRS. R. I do not feel that I am doing all I ought to do as a worker together with Christ, but I am conscious of quickened desires and stronger resolves.

BROTHER S. I have walked in from the Vanderbilt to attend this class-meeting, and feel that it is good to be here. The text and the suggestions that have been made
